Yanks Hurl Defiance At Jap Forces

Plastering Of Nip Positions
May Precipitate New Air-Sea Battle

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—American land, sea and air forces in the southern Solomons today breached defiance at powerful Japan as the 10-hour bombardment of enemy positions on Guadalcanal by U. S. warships threatened to precipitate another sea-air battle in the South Pacific.

Size of the American Flotilla which plastered Jap positions with shells from dawn to mid-afternoon last Wednesday (Washington date) was not known, but it was believed to be fairly powerful since it risked meeting enemy fleet units in any daylight operation.

The surprise bombardment undoubtedly was considered by the Nipponese as a challenge because hitherto the enemy's fleet dominated the waters surrounding Guadalcanal while American forces controlled the skies from their lone airbase on the island.

Quick new counter-blows by the Japs were considered inevitable, especially in view of the fact that the Nipponese called hurriedly for American aid in an effort to halt the American barrage. The thrilling attack was described tersely in a navy communiqué:

"At about dawn U. S. Naval forces commenced bombardment of enemy positions to the westward of our positions on Guadalcanal. Shore batteries were silenced and large fires were started. . . . thirty large landing boats were destroyed by ship's gunfire and several others were damaged."

The navy said that a total of 75 Jap landing boats, some of which had been previously damaged, were sighted at Tassafaronga, about 12 miles northwest of Henderson Field. This indicated that the Japanese have been moving in reinforcements under cover of darkness.

North African Move Helps Bolster Morale Of South Republics

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Diplomatic advices reaching Washington today indicated that the success of the American military offensive in French North Africa has cheated a tremendous impression in Latin America.

American officials in close touch with Latin American affairs feel that the move to secure control of North Africa has done more than anything else since the start of the war to bolster the morale of the other American republics, especially those who have staked their future on the side of the United Nations.

Messages of congratulation and gratification have been pouring into the White House and the State department from the heads of Latin American governments and other representative groups.

Even the Argentine foreign minister, Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, sent a message to Secretary of State Hull expressing approval of the American move to safeguard "the security of the Americas."

President Juan Antonio Rios of Chile also sent a message to President Roosevelt expressing the conviction that the "operations undertaken (in North Africa) tend . . . to guarantee the security of this hemisphere."

In view of the fact that Argentina and Chile are the only two Latin American nations which have refused to break relations with the Axis, their favorable reaction to the American move to help drive the Germans and the Italians out of North Africa was considered extremely significant.

Guns And Supplies Available To French And Natives Of Morocco, Algeria

HELP PROMISED BY F. D. R.

No One To Go Hungry Says President To Enemies Of Germany And Italy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—With Lend-Lease munitions and supplies now available to the French armed forces in Africa and the natives of Morocco and Algeria, Washington today looked confidently to the establishment of a "citizen army" of North Africans to fight side by side with the United Nations toward ultimate defeat of the axis.

Moving swiftly in the wake of American occupation of the two North African possessions of France, President Roosevelt ordered Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., to make available arms, food and supplies to the Army Navy, air forces and citizens of these areas.

Coupled with this bold stroke was a presidential promise to the peoples of American-occupied lands that they would not meet the fate of countries over-run by the axis hordes.

Food For All

"No one will go hungry or without other means of livelihood in any territory occupied by the United Nations, if it is humanly within our powers to make the necessary supplies available to them," the President pledged.

"Weapons also will be supplied to the peoples of these territories to hasten the defeat of the axis."

In the President's offer of supplies and munitions to the Navy was the first hint from official Washington quarters that some units of the French fleet might be fighting with the United Nations in the Mediterranean theatre of war. Observers also saw in the statement a thinly-veiled invitation to neutral units of the Vichy Navy to come over to the United Nations' side and fight with them for the liberation of France from German occupation.

Second Group Found

The Second group, located on the island by another flying boat, consisted of Lieut. James C. Whittaker, Burlingame, Calif., Lieut. John J. De Angelis, Nesquon, Pa., and Staff Sgt. James Reynolds, Fort Jones, Calif., all of the U. S. Army. Their condition is unknown.

Capt. William T. Cherry Jr., of Abilene, Tex., Rickenbacker's pilot on the flight, was picked up at sea by the Navy on November 12.

The Navy's announcement today indicated that the rescue took place near the Phoenix Islands, which are about 600 miles north of the Samoan group and approximately 2,000 miles south of Hawaii.

On Tuesday afternoon, as the chief executive announced the 7,500,000-man goal for the army by the end of 1943, he forecast that tens of thousands of others would be fighting with this huge force.

It was the second airplane accident within the last three years in which Rickenbacker came through miraculously.

Six Companions of Ace Rescued; Seventh Dies And Is Buried At Sea

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, World War I flying ace and death-cheating traveler on the world's air lanes, has been rescued by the Navy from a rubber lifeboat which had bobbed around in the South Pacific ocean since October 21, the Navy announced today.

"Rick" was picked up at sea with two of his flying companions by a Catalina flying boat 600 miles north of the Samoan islands—peace-time air stop of the clipper ships on their route from Honolulu to Sidney, Australia.

Three other members of Rickenbacker's flight were located on a small island, the announcement said, and a Navy medical officer has been flown there to aid them.

Thus, all but one of the eight men on the plane which was forced into the sea while on a secret mission to the South Pacific war theatre for Secretary of War Stimson have been found alive. The eighth man, Sgt. Alexander Caczmarsky, of Torrington, Conn., died several days ago and was buried at sea.

Rickenbacker, and Col. Hans C. Adamson, Washington, D. C., one of the two men rescued with him, were reported in good condition. The third man, Pvt. John F. Bartek, of Freehold, N. J., was in a serious condition, but expected to recover.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14—The Republican state committee spent almost four times as much as the Democrats in the November election campaign, according to reports on file today with the Secretary of State.

However, the GOP ended with a deficit while the Democrats had a small balance. The Republican report showed contributions of $89,295 and expenditures of $88,383 with $17,529 in accounts payable.

The aged ex-banker, who lived in Salt Creek township, Pickaway county, was charged with taking $14,000 from June 1, 1930 to May 23, 1942. He admitted embezzlements, but declared that he did not take more than $3,000 in that time.

Mr. Strous left the bank's employ last May after shortages were discovered.

BLUE LION '11' COPS SCO TITLE IN 19-0 VICTORY

Tiger Crew Impotent With Shea, Smallwood Unable To Display Ability

A fast and hard-driving Washington C. H. Blue Lion grid team ran roughshod over Circleville High Friday night at Washington to gain the South Central Ohio league title, 19-0, in the closing game of the SCO schedule. The Blue Lions went through the schedule without a defeat. The Tigers finished in third place behind Greenfield, winning two and losing two.

The Red and Black just didn't have a chance, the team never clicking although it moved to the one yard line in the last period against Washington's second team only to lose the chance to score when backfield was in motion. Penalties played a big role in the ball game, each time suffering often, Circleville mostly for offside and Washington several times for holding or clipping.

The Blue Lions drove for a touchdown in the first period after a blocked punt set up the opportunity. Schwartz, tackle broke through to smash the ball, to the ground as Friedman booted it. Washington covering on the six. Mann picked up two yards in two tries and Tillett smashed over. Mann's placement was no good.

Mann Goes Over

Second score came in the second period with only two minutes remaining. Mann going over tackle from one yard out. Shoultz ran for the extra point. This drive was good for 45 yards, Washington putting the leather in play after another Circleville punt was partially blocked.

The scoring ended in the third period after a 56 yard drive climaxed by a two yard smash by Shoultz. Washington piled up three first downs before Shoultz went over. Mann's placement was not good.

The Tigers never did get under way, Tom Shee being far below form because of his injured knee which made him practically a one-legged griddler. Dad Smallwood was under par because of his recent illness. Both boys did everything they could in an effort to upset the Blue Lions and by winning gain a tie for the top position in the SCO. But the only zip was missing.

Bobby Valentine, Rich Wells and Earl Wallace, who played the entire game, kept fighting in the line, with several other boys doing well at various times.

Only offensive started by the Red and Black was in the last quarter when the in-motion penalty cost valuable yardage. Play started on the 31 after a kick by Mann. A pass was ruled complete on the 42 because of interference, and two plays later a Washington holding penalty moved the Tigers across midfield. A fake play broke Bach loose for a 20 yard run, but a backfield in motion ruling cost five yards in addition to loss of Bach's gain. However, Shee fired a pass to Bach which moved the ball to the 30. A Bach to Emmett Dade pass carried the ball to the six. Another pass failed to gain. Shee smashed for four and Dade went to the one only to have the play called back and Circleville penalized. That ended the threat, Washington punting out, and Schwartz intercepting a Tiger aerial as the game ended.

The contest was the last for Wells, Bach, Smallwood and Eddie Friedman, the latter removing Saturday to Dayton. Washington C. H. loses 10 of its first 11 boys by graduation.

Several Circleville youths were taken off the field with injuries, but none appeared serious. Fred Heath came up with a twisted ankle and Don Sowers has some ribs cracked.

IOWA TRYING TO BREAK JINX ON GOPHERS' FIELD

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 14 — The giant-killing Iowa Hawkeyes, fresh from last week's upset victory over Wisconsin, tackle Minnesota's football hosts in a game that had the dopesters admittedly licked.

Some 30,000 fans were expected to be on hand to witness the 36th renewal of the Iowa-Minnesota grid series, a battle which may have a major part to play in ultimate decision of the Big Ten conference title.

Iowa is out of the title race because of losses to Indiana and Illinois, but Iowa is decidedly in the Western Conference picture. The Hawkeyes are riding high in a first-place tie for league leadership.

Iowa sported the same calm confidence which led it to stirring wins over the Illini and the Badgers, but the Gophers were dangerous. Additionally there was a jinx on which Minnesota rooters pinned their hopes. Not since 1921 has Iowa won on the Gopher's home field.

WILDCATS SEEK VICTORY OVER BADGER OUTFIT

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 14 — Wisconsin, attempting to keep in the running for the Big Ten football title, and Northwestern, trying to win its first Western Conference game of the season, took the field today in the 29th game of the 52-year-old gridiron rivalry between the two schools.

The Badgers, with two victories against one loss, need to win today's game and next week's against Minnesota to continue as a title possibility. The Wildcats have lost five straight conference games and today's encounter afforded them the last chance to break into the Big Ten victory column.

The game loomed as a duel between Wisconsin's power attack, built around its two backfield aces, Fullback Pat Harder and Halfback Elroy Hirsch, and Northwestern's passing game which centered around the accurate tossing of Otto Graham. Graham currently leads the Big Ten in total offense.

twelve halves to Willard Wilson, hardware operator, for $2,000, the money to be invested by Mr. Wilson in War Bonds.

WALNUT EDGES ASHVILLE CREW

Hard-Fought Contest Goes To Underdog; Washington Takes Opener

First big upset of the young basketball season was recorded Friday night when Walnut township scored a 21-20 victory over Ashville on the winner's court. Ashville was a top heavy favorite, but couldn't hold an 8-0 lead piled up in the first quarter.

Walnut tied it up at halftime, 8-8, and from that point on the game was a ding dong affair. The lead alternated many times in the last period.

Pontius, a guard, paced the winners with seven points, while Dick Messick hit for seven for the losers.

Ashville reserves won a 22-9 game and Ashville girls won a 19-9 preliminary.

Red and Black Loses Season's Final Game to Washington C. H.

BLUE LION '11' COPS SCO TITLE IN 19-0 VICTORY

Tiger Crew Impotent With Shea, Smallwood Unable To Display Ability

A fast and hard-driving Washington C. H. Blue Lion grid team ran roughshod over Circleville high Friday night at Washington to gain the South Central Ohio league title, 19-0, in the closing game of the SCO schedule. The Blue Lions went through the schedule without a defeat. The Tigers finished in third place behind Greenfield, winning two and losing two.

The Red and Black just didn't have a chance, the team never clicking although it moved to the one yard line in the last period against Washington's second team only to lose the chance to score when backfield was in motion. Penalties played a big role in the ball game, each time suffering often, Circleville mostly for offside and Washington several times for holding or clipping.

The Blue Lions drove for a touchdown in the first period after a blocked punt set up the opportunity. Schwartz, tackle broke through to smash the ball, to the ground as Friedman booted it. Washington covering on the six. Mann picked up two yards in two tries and Tillet smashed over. Mann's placement was no good.

Mann Goes Over

Second score came in the second period with only two minutes remaining. Mann going over from one yard out. Shouts ran for the extra point. This drive was good for 45 yards, Washington putting the leather in play after another Circleville punt was partially blocked.

The scoring ended in the third period after a 56 yard drive climaxed by a two yard smash by Shouts. Washington piled up three first downs before Shouts went over. Mann's placement was not good.

The Tigers never did get under way. Tom Sheen being far below form because of his injured knee which made him practically a one-legged griddler. Dad Smallwood was under par because of his recent illness. Both boys did everything they could in an effort to upset the Blue Lions and by winning gain a tie for the top position in the SCO. But the only zip was missing.

Bobby Valentine, Rich Wells and Earl Wallace, who played the entire game, kept fighting in the line, with several other boys doing well at various times.

Only offensive started by the Red and Black was in the last quarter when the in-motion penalty cost valuable yardage. Play started on the 31 after a kick by Mann. A pass was ruled complete on the 42 because of interference, and two plays later a Washington holding penalty moved the Tigers across midfield. A fake play broke Bach loose for a 20 yard run, but a backfield in motion ruling cost five yards in addition to loss of Bach's gain. However, Sheen fired a pass to Bach which moved the ball to the 30. A Bach to Emmett Dade pass carried the ball to the six. Another pass failed to gain. Sheen smashed for four and Dade went to the one only to have the play called back and Circleville penalized. That ended the threat, Washington punting out, and Schwartz intercepting a Tiger aerial as the game ended.

The contest was the last for Wells, Bach, Smallwood and Eddie Friedman, the latter removing Saturday to Dayton. Washington C. H. loses 10 of its first 11 boys today.

Several Injured

Several Circleville youths were taken off the field with injuries, but none appeared serious. Freck Heath came up with a twisted ankle and Don Sowers has some ribs cracked.

Beau Jack Says Title His After Upset Kayo

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A fighting fool named Beau Jack, who stirred fond memories of little Henry Armstrong as he hacked out a seven-round technical upset kayo over little Allie Stolz, was on top of theistic world today and if his aggressive little manager, Hercules (Chick) Wergoles, has anything to say about it—and he'll have plenty—the Beau will stay as lightweight champion.

Wergoles, using marvelous restraint and practically no gestures, opined today that inasmuch as the Beau, who was discovered shining shoes at the Augusta, Ga., Country club, had whipped the Number 1 lightweight contender and Champion Sammy Angott had retired, he was entitled to the crown.

Chick's logic may not meet with the approval of the New York state boxing commission and the N.B.A. who are united for the first time today, in bewilderment. The state of the 135-pound division resembles Rommel's retreat through Egypt—utter confusion.

Stolz, who was kayoed when the commission doctor, William Walker, decided a cut on Allie's left eye might have serious complications, was a 3 to 1 favorite over the colored boy and was ranked by both biff boards as the Number 1 challenger for Angott's title.

Then yesterday afternoon, Champion Angott who was to have met the winner of last night's brawl, suddenly decided he'd had enough of fighting and retired.

The NBA chief, Abe Greene, said Stolz was still Number 1 on its list before the fight and would have to be rated at least as champion pro tem.

Then Jack Kaido Allie and Greene threw up his hands. "This looks like a Chinese omelet now. We'll have to drop Stolz a peg and move Tippy Larkin of New Jersey and Beau Jack up to share the Number 1 spot on our ratings. The only way the title question can be settled I guess, is by having an elimination."

Wergoles had his own ideas on the subject. "I'm going down to the boxing commission and ask that Beau Jack be recognized as defending champion. Beau licked the Number 1 contender, didn't he, and there's no champion—so that makes him defending champion."

Iowa sported the same calm confidence which led it to stirring wins over the Illini and the Badgers, but the Gophers were dangerous. Additionally there was a jinx on which Minnesota rooters pinned their hopes. Not since 1921 has Iowa won on the Gopher's home field.

The outcome was regarded as a toss-up, what with Michigan's wealth of reserve backs and Notre Dame's sturdy line replacements, coupled with the passing of Andy Bertelli. Bertelli is aided by such ground gainers as Pete Ashbaugh, Bob Livingstone, Corwin Clatt and Jerry Cowhig.

Cochrane Crisler had probably the best assortment of running backs at his command. They include Tommy Kuzma, Bob Wiese, Paul White, Don Robinson, Frank Wardell, Bob Stenberg, Don Lund, Bob Chappius and Capt. George Ceitham.

REVIVAL CONTINUING AT CHRISTIAN UNION CHURCH

Revival at the Circleville Church of Christ in Christian Union has gained such interest that it will continue into this next week, Ross W. Hayslip, the pastor of the church, announces. The sermon subjects for the Sunday services are: 11 a. m.: "The Joy of Salvation" and 7:30: "The Day of Judgment".

Recently Mr. Reeder spoke to the Rotary club and to the Circleville high school. The local church is fortunate in securing his services for a second visit to this city.

By the constitution of the Republic of Peru, the government consists of a president and two vice presidents, elected by direct suffrage for a period of six years. They are barred from re-election.

Let us turn to the Bible and in Matthew 6:33. But seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. There we have the promise of God to help us in every way if we seek Him first. God, Our Creator, so made us that we all need the help of God, we can not be our best without Him.

In times of war we cannot afford to give anything less than our best to God and Country, out of our giving will come not only peace to our nation but life everlasting for us.

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for November 15 is Genesis 4:1-12; 27:1-45; Deut. 24:1-5; Malachi 2:13-16; Matt. 5:31, 32; Mark 7:10-12; Luke 12:13-15; Romans 7:2, 3; I Cor. 7:10-16, the Golden Text being Gal. 6:2, "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law.")

TO MOST people the word home brings feelings of happiness and contentment. We may not live at home, but if we do not we always hope to go home some time or other. The word calls up memories of childhood when we had father and mother, brothers and sisters, maybe, and we were all happy together under one roof, no matter what our differences. Those persons who never have had a real home are very much to be pitied.

Homes are not always happy ones, but they should be. Husband and wives do not always love each other as they should, or treat each other with loving courtesy. Children have their natural differences, but they are usually slight and as they grow up the feelings they engender cease, and are forgotten.

Today's lesson tells us of some sad instances, related in the Bible, in which brothers hated each other to the point of murder. The first one was the case of Cain and Abel. Abel won the favor of the Lord with his sacrifices, Cain did not. Instead of trying to find out why his sacrifice was not received and making it acceptable, Cain hated his brother for his success, and when the brothers met in the field, they had some words and Cain killed his brother. You remember his punishment and how all his life he suffered for giving way to his evil passion and hatred of the brother he should have loved.

Jacob Deceives Isaac

Next is the case of Esau and Jacob. Jacob was the younger and his mother's favorite; Esau was his father's. When Isaac told Esau to go out and hunt for game to cook for his father, who would then give him his blessing, the mother, Rebekah, plotted to get the blessing for her favorite, Jacob, so she cooked the dish that Isaac loved, dressed Jacob up so that his old blind father would think he was Esau, and so stole the blessing. You will remember Esau's grief when he found out what his brother had done, and how he threatened to kill his brother when Isaac was dead, and how Rebekah sent Jacob away until his brother's anger should have abated.

Such deceit and wickedness

PLANS BEING MADE FOR THANKSGIVING SERVICE

PRESBYTERIANS TO HEAR PASTOR ONCE CAPTIVE

The Rev. Charles V. Reeder, a Presbyterian missionary, will be the speaker in the worship services of the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning during the 10:30 hour. Mr. Reeder is well-known in the city being a son-in-law of Mrs. Charles Abernathy of North Court street.

Music will be furnished by the choir of the Evangelical church. The offering to be taken will be given to the China Relief fund. The complete program will be announced next week.

REVIVAL CONTINUING AT CHRISTIAN UNION CHURCH

Revival at the Circleville Church of Christ in Christian Union has gained such interest that it will continue into this next week, Ross W. Hayslip, the pastor of the church, announces. The sermon subjects for the Sunday services are: 11 a. m.: "The Joy of Salvation" and 7:30: "The Day of Judgment".

Recently Mr. Reeder spoke to the Rotary club and to the Circleville high school. The local church is fortunate in securing his services for a second visit to this country.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, local pastor, will preside during the worship service Sunday morning. The choir will sing the anthem "I Sought the Lord" by Stevenson. Miss Abbie Mills Clarke, church organist, will play "Andante Cantabile" by Tschalkowsky, "Song Without Words" by Lemare, and "Finale" by Dubois.

By the constitution of the Republic of Peru, the government consists of a president and two vice presidents, elected by direct suffrage for a period of six years. They are barred from re-election.

ON WITH THE JOB

FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT so often "leads with his chin" that people who don't like him naturally take an occasional crack at it. But just now hostilities seem suspended. That almost incredible feat of getting a big, well-supplied Army across the Atlantic and on the job where it was most needed, in so short a time, leaves critics gasping and peps up normal admirers. As a sporting proposition, even the President's most severe critics have been willing to "give him a hand" for that job.

On the whole, the war is now going better than could have been expected a few months ago. American strength is making itself felt more effectively. And as Allied power rises, Axis power declines. There will be many a tough job yet to do, and many a set-back, but the Victory march has begun. And it may be reasonable to expect now that politics will be postponed, on both sides, for the duration. Compared with the military job to be done, nothing else matters much now.

WAR PIANOS

ONE OF THE strangest things in this topsy-turvy time is the widespread assault on pianos. A great many were rounded up on the recent rubbish collection, to have their metal melted down for war use, but there are plenty left. One city of about a million people has now started a new drive, expected to bring in 5,000 more pianos for sacrifice.

And why scrap all these pianos, which their owners once prized highly? Partly, of course, it's patriotism. Plenty of people will give almost anything they possess to help along "the war effort." But it seems as easy to give away pianos nowadays as it once was hard to acquire them. The average piano may not be valued at more than $25 or $50, and is seldom used.

Radio music has brought these once prized instruments to their low estate. They almost seem to be vanishing now, as family organs did a generation ago. Music, which for centuries was largely a personal and individual thing, is now more and more collectivized.

NAZIS IN TROUBLE

THE ROUT OF Rommel in North Africa, and the slackening of the German attack at Stalingrad and the Caucasus, are probably no mere coincidence. They seem to show that troops and materials are either being transferred from the Russian front to bolster up the African army, or what amounts to the same thing, are being shipped direct from Germany to Africa, instead of going from Germany to Russia.

In any case, formidable as the Nazis still are at any point where they may care to exert themselves, two major efforts at the same time are beyond them. A real-

WASHINGTON — The French hushed it up at the time, but they had a lot of trouble some time ago with bristling-mustached Sidi Moncef Pacha, the Bey of Tunis. The incident is important in view of the fact that the Bey is now virtually cheek by jowl with American doughboys.

The French Resident-general in Tunis had eliminated a lot of Jewish doctors from the list allowed to practice in the country, and Bey Sidi Moncef objected vigorously. In fact, he threatened Admiral Juan Pierre Esteva that if the doctors were not allowed to practice he would fly to Vichy and intervene personally with Marshal Petain.

"If the French government wishes to imitate the anti-Semitic program of the Nazis and the Fascists," Sidi Moncef told Admiral Esteva, according to an official report received by this government, "let it confine its work to metropolitan France. We will have none of this here."

The incident caused such strained relations between Admiral Esteva and the Bey that the latter resolved to have Esteva removed as Resident-General. Vichy became alarmed and sent several important officials, including Admiral Darlan, on "inspection tours" to butter up the Bey. Actually the Bey of Tunis has little power as far as the French government is concerned, but a lot of influence and popularity with the Arabs of Tunis. He commands no army, and bearded Admiral Esteva is far more important in external matters.

But in view of possible sabotage, the attitude of the Tunisian people is important and the Bey is one of the most popular native rulers in Africa. When his carriage appears on the streets he is surrounded by cheering crowds and if any Frenchman along the way fails to salute, the Arabs knock his hat off.

Sidi Moncef has dispensed with Arab ceremonials, receives delegations of peoples who have grievances, and has even abolished the requirement that subjects kiss his hand, declaring that he will use his hands instead to make more generous distribution of the country's wealth to the country's people.

When he was inaugurated last June, a scene took place which reminded Americans of Daniel Webster's account of Andrew Jackson's inauguration, when "pushing idolators behaved like hoodlums, upsetting punch bowls in the White House, breaking glasses, and standing in muddy boots on damask chairs to catch a glimpse of the people's Napoleon."

In Tunis, a perspiring mob surged toward the inaugural platform, a motley mingling of caids, beylecal generals, diplomats and ordinary Arabs from the four corners of Tunisia. The Spanish Consul-General, who was dean of the diplomatic corps, almost fainted in the crush.

At the time, it looked like comic opera to American observers but Tunisia's inspiring democracy takes on a new significance.

It was a good idea for Uncle Sam and John Bull to make it clear that they're not annexing any territory. We've got more real estate, anyway, than we know what to do with.

There goes Bugs McCrady who is lining up a big auxiliary police force for duty in event of a war emergency. Will have more than 40 special officers. The sheriff is training 40 and the State Highway Patrol has trained 25. Plenty of local protection. And an asset to the community.

Passed down the street and everyone mentioned the death of Howard Orr. One of those things that can happen to anyone. A slight mental slippage and the end. And it can come so suddenly and unexpectedly. Certainly the sympathy of everyone extends to that bereaved family, the first of Howard's two great interests in life, the other being his business.

Time changes everything. Even names for some. He was christened William Jennings Bryan Custer and was so known through school. Later that was shortened to J. Bryan Custer. Then came the first World War and a hard-boiled enrolling officer. "What's your name?" he barked and the reply was "J. Bryan Custer." "Listen to me, buddy," said the sarge, "this is a man's army and we don't part names in the middle. Give it to me again and give it right." So, the soldier to be said: "Make it Bryan J. Custer," and Bryan J. Custer it has been ever since.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
MARY HURRIED straight to the F. B. I. offices when she arrived at the Nordex plant. Today, all was tense, efficient bedlam. F. B. I. men strode across the outer office on their way in or out of Danver's private quarters with urgent speed. His secretary, usually so pleasant, was too rushed with work to do more than motion Mary to a chair, indicating she should have to wait for her interview.

But Mary was in no mood to wait. Perhaps even at this minute they were deciding the fate of Bruce Martin! She hovered over the secretary's desk and asked how soon she could see Mr. Danver.

"When the executive meeting's over," Danver's secretary answered without looking up from her work.

Many felt chills of apprehension creep up and down her spine. They were firing Bruce—or worse, planning to hold him in formal arrest over the sabotage trouble. She was sure of it! She looked hopelessly at the closed door. When the executive meeting was over, it would be too late. But it mustn't be! She had to tell them! Possessed by the urgency of the thought, she rushed across the room and, before the secretary could call out, pushed open the door of Danver's private office.

Fourteen men looked up from the long conference table as the small, shining-eyed girl slipped into the room, and they watched her with amazement as she advanced upon them, with the reckless violent speed of a cyclone. Danver stood up to stop her from frowning courtesy.

"Miss Dexter, if you'll wait in the outer office, I'll see you when the meeting is over."

Mary had reached Danver's side and she stood facing him, her slim body, in its green suede frock, trembling with determination, her green eyes blazing with purpose. "I can't wait," she said. "I have to give my report before this meeting is over."

The Nordex officials regarded Mary with growing surprise; Danver with divided emotions. Beneath his perturbation over this unusual procedure, his keen analytical sense was delighting in its own error.

Here was the quiet, retiring little girl whom he had hesitated to trust with an assignment requiring the slightest courage! A timid honest, she thought. Women—confound them and beat them—forever slipping through the bars of psychological charts! No way of measuring their potential courage and power when faced with danger to one of their beloved.

With a sudden gesture of friendly welcome, he moved aside to make room for her at the table, and introduced her as one of the Nordex workers co-operating with his department.

Mary told her story in a rush of eagerness; her assignment to question Joe Banks only at the luncheon table, her disobeying this order to go with him on a round of night clubs, her meeting Joe Banks' friends, and finally of Bruce Martin's disastrous adventure with the green sedan. She laid the flattened bullet in Danver's hand as she finished on a restatement of her belief in Bruce's innocence. Then, as she paused for breath, her eyes focused for the first time on the faces of her imposing audience. Her heart sank at their expressions. They had listened calmly to her evidence—evidence that she thought convincing. But they had not been convinced. They remained polite, sympathetic with her, but impulsive.

"She cried desperately, "But if Bruce Martin were a member of the sabotage ring, they would not be shooting at him, would they?"

"One of the men spoke quietly: "You said, Miss Dexter, that Mr. Martin told you it was these men who had shot at him."

Mary caught her breath in dismay as she realized where her story had fallen down. "He was telling the truth. I know he was telling the truth," she cried. "He doesn't have any idea I'm working with the F. B. I."

She felt Danver's hand on her shoulder, heard him thanking her and asking her to wait for her interview. Somehow she stumbled from the room to sit miserably in the outer office. She found herself feeling the same bitter resentment toward these men that Bruce felt. Why did they turn thumbs down on him? Why did they refuse to trust him? It wasn't fair!

By the time Danver called her back in, seated her in her usual chair beside his large desk and settled back in his chair for their private interview, she had worked herself into a state of fury. She burst out with her feelings concerning the unfair treatment of Bruce Martin. She said that she would not go on working for a stubb, precluded, blind group of men such as this. Bruce Martin was innocent and they were determined to pin this sabotage on him!

Danver was smiling thoughtfully, drumming his fingers on the desk as she talked. When she had finished, he raised his eyes for a quick, measuring scrutiny of her as she rose to leave, on the crest of her angry declaration. "Sit down, Miss Dexter," he said quietly. Deep amusement was in his eyes, and friendly sympathy, puncturing the satisfaction of her dramatic exit.

Mary hesitated. The amusement left his eyes. He added thoughtfully, "Your indignation is failing to clear Bruce, although your testimony is understandable. But your evaluation of the executives is, I am afraid, unfair. Because, you see, you don't have all of the information on the case."

"I know that you are grounding

Four swiveled forward again in his chair and got to his feet, indicating the interview was at an end. "There are times," he said quietly as Mary rose, "when we must choose between allegiance to our country and a desire to shield those we love. Think it over. If you want to take another assignment, let me know."

Mary was fumbling in her purse.

She drew out a slip of paper and gave it to him. "The number of the coupe Joe Banks borrowed the other night to take me out," she said softly. Then her throat closed, and tears flooded her eyes.

Danver knew as he gripped her hand with cordial pressure, that she had given her answer.

C.H.S. OBSERVES
ARMISTICE DAY

Circleville high school pupils observed Armistice Day at 10:30 Wednesday morning in an assembly held in the auditorium.

David Orr opened the program by leading the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Preceding the program, sheets of song lyrics popular in 1918 were distributed among the students.

Pupils joined in singing old favorites such as "Over There", "It's a Long Way to Tipperary", "Pack Up Your Troubles", "K-K-K-Katy", "When You Wore a Tulip", "Anchors Aweigh" and "My Wild Rose".

Miss Marjorie Vorhees lead the group singing.

At 11:00 a.m. a bell rang as the signal for all students to rise and face the East. Then followed an awe-inspiring silence as each girl, boy, or teacher paused for a moment of solemn meditation in commemoration of the day on which the last world war ended.

Following this ceremony Miss Vorhees led the singing of "Bye Buddy", "Till We Meet Again" and finally "God Bless America."

Concluding the program, Principal J. Wray Henry made a few remarks concerning the responsibilities of school pupils during the present war.

He also spoke of plans for future assemblies at which he expects to teach students some of the rudiments of civilian defense.

This was the first assembly of the year at which all pupils sat in alphabetical order. Wednesday morning, seat assignments had been given to pupils by the home room teachers.

EDITORIAL

SCHOOL RIVALRY

Many high school pupils are unjust and prejudiced in their opinions of a rival school.

Since none of us is an authority on subjects about which we know comparatively nothing we can express only our own personal opinions.

Before making any statement about some school we should ask, "Do you know any reason why you should really dislike the school?" Is it just because of that defeat of last year or the year before? Shouldn't we admire the good qualities of the team which defeated us?" Of course you may say that they were unfair but after all isn't that just your opinion?

Perhaps every thing didn't seem just, fair, open, and aboveboard but should

Recreation Center At Sears-Nichols Plant Closed by WPA

ENTIRE STAFF QUILTS TO ENTER DEFENSE WORK

Property Used By Division To Go To Churches And Children's Home

Pickaway county WPA was left with one less project Saturday following closing of the recreation center at the old Sears-Nichols office, South Washington street. Thus the undertaking which at one time had as many as 17 persons employed regularly is no more.

Delos H. Marcy, relief director, reported Saturday that every one of the 17 persons employed by WPA in the last several years to conduct the recreation program has gone into defense work.

Only recreation center remaining is at Ashville where a local organization using local funds is in operation. Some of the equipment used there is property of WPA.

Mr. Marcy said that all property used in the Sears-Nichols center and in other centers which have been closed will be turned over to the Children's Home and to churches which wish it for their play rooms. The equipment includes various game tables, game boards, weaving and woodworking equipment.

With elimination of the recreation program only projects handled now by the WPA office are the sewing center where 18 women whose ages average between 55 and 60 are at work; WPA road work which involves only a few men, and distribution of surplus commodities to 14 schools receiving supplies from the government. Four city schools and two rural schools receive fruit only, while the remaining eight which operate school cafeterias receive all kinds of commodities from the government.

The local relief office also supervises about 200 unemployed who receive aid regularly from the county, including surplus foods, shelter, clothing and other necessities. The office continues its investigation work, and at present is in need of a case worker to replace one who has entered defense work.

The sewing project is considered a defense industry since women employed there do much repair work for the various Army bases in this district, including Lockbourne air base and Fort Hayes, headquarters of the Fifth Service Command.

NEWARK MAN'S PLAN TO KEEP WARM HOT ONE

NEWARK, O., Nov. 14—It was rather chilly this morning, so when J. C. Cole, of Newark, arose from his bed he stood in front of his open fireplace.

The result was that his night clothing caught fire. He jumped back into bed to smother the flames but set fire to the bed-clothing instead.

Hospital attendants reported Cole suffered burns on his back and legs. Firemen prevented further property damage.

Trouble Looming For Blackout Violators

Possibility that many of Circleville's business houses will be cited into court for failing to observe blackout regulations when the county seat's first blackout comes in the near future was seen Saturday after fewer than 15 representatives of business appeared Friday night at office of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company to receive instruction in blackout procedures.

Since there are approximately 125 business houses in the city, only a few will know what to do when a blackout is ordered. And they must know what to do. Uncle Sam has decreed, or face court hearings and possible fines and jail terms for violating regulations.

It is likely that another meeting will be called next week with merchants being given an opportunity to learn what they must do in case of blackout.

Charles T. Gilmore, electric company manager, is chairman of the Civilian Defense Council's unit in charge of this phase of defense work. It is his responsibility to instruct merchants concerning preparation for blackout and for regulations concerning blackouts in business districts, but he is not

CENTRAL TIME URGED IN OHIO BY STATE SOLOON

FOSTORIA, Nov. 14 — State Rep. Willis L. Cory, Seneca county Republican and chairman of the house agriculture committee in the last legislature, today announced he will introduce a bill in the 95th General Assembly in January to place Ohio in the Central Standard Time Zone.

Enactment of the bill would place the state under the same time schedule enjoyed before wartime advanced the nation's clocks one hour.

Cory said he had received numerous requests from farmers and parents of school children asking that legislation be enacted to provide daylight one hour earlier.

According to Cory's proposed law, the governor by proclamation could, at the close of the war, return the state to the eastern standard time zone.

FIRST NOVEMBER INDUCTION LIST SENT FROM CITY

$49,680 GOAL SURPASSED BY COUNTY BOARD

First section of Pickaway county's November contingent of draftees left Saturday for examination by the Army medical team in Columbus, the group of, somewhat more than 70 men using three buses for the trip. Local draft board named Morris Boggs of Circleville, a veteran of World War I, in charge of the contingent.

Three men scheduled to report for induction failed to report, the board disclosed. They were Emmanuel Johnston of Jackson, O., RFD; William Robert McKnight, whose last known address was Phoenix, Arizona, and Charles V. Furness of Circleville Route 3.

One notice sent to Johnston was returned to the board without delivery and another was mailed to a new address. The notice to McKnight has not been returned so the board believes he has learned of the induction date. No reason was given for failure of Furness to report.

Local board will send its second November contingent next week with a quota of four Negro registrants to be assigned later in the month. The county did not have a Negro registrant accepted during October so is expecting larger colored quotas.

RICKENBACKER

"Tell the boys I'll be out of here in three or four days."

Amazing Return

Rick's latest amazing "return from the dead" in the South Pacific was told by the Navy today in an announcement which said: "Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Col. Hans C. Adamson, and Pvt. John F. Bartek, all of the U. S. Army, who have been missing since October 21, when the plane in which they were flying was forced down in the Pacific, have been rescued from the sea by a Navy Catalina flying boat.

"Capt. Rickenbacker reported that Sgt. Alexander Czaczmarczyk, who was with them, died several days ago and was buried at sea. Lt. James C. Whitaker, Lt. John J. De Angelis and Staff Sgt. James Reynolds, all of the U. S. Army, who were also aboard the missing plane, have been located by a Navy Catalina flying boat ashore on a small island in the South Pacific.

"With the rescue of Capt. William T. Cherry Jr., U.S.A., all the personnel of the Rickenbacker party are accounted for.

In Good Condition

"Capt. Rickenbacker and Col. Adamson are reported in good condition, while Pvt. Bartek, whose condition is reported serious, is nevertheless expected to recover.

"The second group consisting of Lts. Whitaker and De Angelis, and Sgt. Reynolds, are all alive but their condition is unknown. A U. S. Navy medical officer has been flown to the island on which they are located. They will be returned to a naval hospital in the Pacific.

"The rescue of all the surviving members of Capt. Rickenbacker's plane, which was forced down after reporting less than an hour's supply of gas on October 21, was accomplished after intensive and continuous search of a wide area of the Pacific by planes and ships.

"Even the approximately location of Capt. Rickenbacker's forced landing at sea was unknown when the search began.

The fire was discovered at a few minutes after 6 o'clock by Mrs. Hoffman. She awoke Miss Mattie Dresbach, who lives with her, and firemen were called. Harry Swearingen, also a roomer there, was also awoke.

The fire started in the basement around a hot water tank and made its way up into the house, through a clothes chute and into the upstairs before it was discovered. Firemen fought flames for about an hour.

Loss was estimated at $250.

The campaign was a difficult one from its start, with the chairman taking the lead in seeking to overcome all obstacles that stood in the path of the drive.

Success Assured

Mr. Fischer said Saturday that it was not until two weeks ago that he began to believe the effort would be concluded with success. At that time the campaign had reached almost $40,000.

Circleville schools and numerous organizations of city and county played important roles in success of the campaign. Pupils, organizations and teachers of Circleville gave $3,000 to the Community Chest, and all were lauded Saturday by the chairman. He declared, "you have every right to be proud of the role you have played. Remember that your money shall have gone to the most Holy cause that has existed since time began. Stated briefly, that cause is that Christianity and civilization may not be swept from the face of the globe."

ARCH CRIMINAL FOUND SERVING AS ARMY COP

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 — Even Sherlock Holmes would not seek the arch criminals of his fictional career in Scotland Yard — but then truth is always stranger than fiction.

James Reynolds, all of the U. S. Army, who were also aboard the missing plane, have been located by a Navy Catalina flying boat ashore on a small island in the South Pacific.

"With the rescue of Capt. William T. Cherry Jr., U.S.A., all the personnel of the Rickenbacker party are accounted for.

In Good Condition

"Capt. Rickenbacker and Col. Adamson are reported in good condition, while Pvt. Bartek, whose condition is reported serious, is nevertheless expected to recover.

"The second group consisting of Lts. Whitaker and De Angelis, and Sgt. Reynolds, are all alive but their condition is unknown. A U. S. Navy medical officer has been flown to the island on which they are located. They will be returned to a naval base in the Pacific.

"The rescue of all the surviving members of Capt. Rickenbacker's plane, which was forced down after reporting less than an hour's supply of gas on October 21, was accomplished after intensive and continuous search of a wide area of the Pacific by planes and ships.

"Even the approximately location of Capt. Rickenbacker's forced landing at sea was unknown when the search began.
